"CHINESE" GORDON'S LATEST.

General Gordon has several times startled the world by deeds that were out of the usual, and consequently unexpected, but by his latest move he has outdone himself. It is reported that on reaching Khartoum he issued a proclamation in which he recognized El Mahdi as Sultan of Kordofan. From some points of view this course was entirely proper, for the False Prophet is certainly the principal personage in the province, and has almost entire possession; but what will England think of sovereign honors being accorded an adventurer who recently killed a lot of English officers? As to the Mahdi himself, he may—if he does not die of surprise—be brought to a standstill by this unexpected change in his political standing, in which case Gordon will pass for the shrewdest diplomatist alive. It is also reported that Gordon remitted half the taxes at Khartoum, and placed no restrictions on the slave trade; so he may expect to be in bad odor at once among English statesmen, shopkeepers and philanthropists—that is, the nation at large. It is said that the Arabs at Khartoum express great satisfaction; they certainly would not be Arabs at all if they were not delighted at the prospect of having fewer taxes and selling just as many slaves as before.

If the alleged proclamation were attributed to any one but Gordon it would be promptly dismissed as a joke perpetrated by a telegraph operator at Khartoum.—N. Y. Herald.

ELECTRICITY AND STEAM IN CHINA.

War is bad enough in its way, but a rumor of war may be the means of curing national blindness. China keeps herself to herself as much as circumstances will allow, and although she has permitted the door of the Empire to stand ajar, her welcome to foreigners has never been characterized by gush. The recent unpleasantness with France, however, with the possibility of a first-class war in the near future, has stimulated the Celestial mind to a proper appreciation of modern inventions. A sudden demand has been made for telegraph poles, and the means of quick communication at long distances have been so rapidly supplied that the tick of the electric wire is heard under the walls of Peking. This is a very important fact, and its political significance will not be exhausted when the present difficulty shall be finally settled. Telegraph wires mean a great deal more than mere telegraph wires. They mean the neighborhood of remote provinces, and they may possibly mean news and public opinion some time. It has further entered into the Mongolian mind that in the movement of an army a railway system has decided advantages over the old-fashioned forced marches, and it is reported that work in this direction will not be long delayed. So the world moves. The war or the menace of war will serve to open up China to its population, even if the latch string is not to be on the outside for the rest of the world.—[New York Herald.]

AUTHORITATIVE MEDICAL OPINIONS ABOUT LEPROSY.

In the transactions of the American Dermatological Association for last year a report by Drs. Fox and Graham is given which embodies the results of their combined investigations. The following ten propositions are submitted by them as their deductions from the facts observed:

1. Leprosy is a constitutional disease, and in certain cases appears to be hereditary.
 2. It is undoubtedly contagious by inoculation.
 3. There is no reason for believing that is transmitted in any other way.
 4. Under certain conditions a person may have leprosy and run no risk of transmitting the disease to other of the same household or community.
 5. It is not so liable to be transmitted to others as is syphilis in its early stages. There is no relation between the two diseases.
 6. Leprosy is usually a fatal disease, its average duration being from ten to fifteen years.
 7. In rare instances there is a tendency to recover after the disease has existed for many years.
 8. There is no valid ground for pronouncing the disease incurable.
 9. Judicious treatment usually improves the condition of the patient, and often causes a disappearance of the symptoms.
 10. There is ground for the hope that an improved method of treatment will in time effect the cure of leprosy, or, at least, that it will arrest and control the disease.
- In the Lazaretto of the maritime provinces of Canada they have come to much the same conclusion.

Some women take a fiendish delight in placing a piece of oil cloth where their husbands are sure to step on it in the morning when they spring out of bed when the thermometer is hovering about zero; and for a moment the marrow-chilled man thinks he has discovered the north pole.

The man who expects to have his grave kept green must make hay while the sun shines and buy a lot in a fashionable cemetery.
